History of Perry County.

ces beyond my control have delayed

County, Ohio, which I have for some time Perry County, Ohio, which I have for some time had in contemplation.

The book will be a large volume, of about six hundred pages, well bound and printed, and published by a regular book establishment, on good paper, in good style, and in a workman-like manner. It will contain a history of the county—by townships, as far as practicable—from the period of the earliest white sottlements, down to July 4th, 1877, the close of the Centennial year. The work will give the names of the early pioneers, of each township, as far as possible, introducing incidents connected with the early settlements, and the growth and progress of all parts of the county.

Also, as far as may be obtainable, a separate and distinct account of each town, old and new, including, of course, Overmyertown, Somerset, Thronville, Rehoboth, Bristol, New Lexington, Mount Hope, Crossenville, Wolftown, Maxville, Oarfield, Porterville, Straitsville, Millertown, Sego, Mount Perry, Saltillo, Whippstown, Middletown, New Straitsville, Shawnee, McCuneville, Junction City, Glenford, Moxahala, Hemlock, Ferrara, Baird's Furnes, Buckingham, and any other old or new towns that may be dug up or made up before the manuscript work of the book is closed.

The volume will give a history of the railrosds of OLD. TRIED up before the manuscript work of the book is closed.

The volume will give a history of the railroads of the county, of the newspaper press, of the several county seat struggles, of Perry county in connection with the war of 1812, the Mexican war, and the war of 1881. Also, as far as information can be procured, a separate and distinct account of each Church society in the county.

As extra-historical, the book will contain a chapter upon the mineral and other wealth, and upon the future prospects of the county.

Enough has been said to give an idea of the general scope and character of the proposed volume.—Of course, a local work can not be furnished at so small a cost as one of a general nature. But the price of the History of Perry County will be fixed at $3.00, which is not much in excess of general historical works, of corresponding size and finish.

N. B. Agents are wanted to canvass each township in the county. A ros dent agent of the township in the county. A ros dent agent of the township in the county.
